

Vein Centers of CT treats patients with dignity, respect

By SARAH WILLSON
SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

NEW BRITAIN — Vein Centers of Connecticut works hard to make sure that every client who walks through the door leaves as a happier, healthier and more confident version of themselves.

Doctors Alfred Gladstone and Wanda Kirejczyk treat a variety of vein disorders, including those for men, ranging from perforating to spider veins and all the way to varicose veins.

Gladstone, who has been with the company for over a decade, is a board certified Interventional Radiologist and has been a member of the New Britain Radiological Associates since 1985.

Kirejczyk joined Gladstone in 2007 and is also a staff at the Hospital of Central Connecticut.

Unlike other treatment options, the Vein Centers of Connecticut aims to diagnose the underlying cause of the vein disease, digging deeper to address the root problem rather than just simply treating what lies on the surface.

“Our brand stands for service and compassion,” the website states. “We genuinely care about treating every individual with dignity and respect while providing the highest quality medical care. Patients choose to be treated by our practice because they are confident in our excellent care and outstanding results.”

Staff at the center also works hard at ensuring that treatments are covered by most major healthcare providers so that payment plans are stress-free.

The noninvasive and pain-free vein therapy also allows patients the luxury of being able to resume everyday activities immediately following the surgery.

And with more than 30,000 members, the nonprofit business works to advance the science of radiology along with education for its doctors.

Besides long-lasting results, the center also aims to build close relationships with physicians, clients and healthcare organizations to provide patients with the most comfortable atmosphere possible.

“We are skilled at building referral relationships with physicians and other healthcare organizations whose patients can benefit from our services,” The website continued.

“It is the expectation for our patients to become symptom-free.”

The Vein Centers of Connecticut is located at 23 Cedar St., New Britain and is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and can be contacted at 860-229-8346.
