Jack of All Trades Remodeling will treat the work on your home as if it were working on their own. The business this year is celebrating its 35th year remodeling the homes of its customers.

Jack of All Trades is a full-service remodeling company that does everything from economical projects, carpentry and tile to high-end bathrooms and kitchens. The company can do all types of repairs from sheet-rock to plumbing to electrical and everything in between.

Dan St. Laurent and his brother Tim started the business more than three decades ago. Tim has since passed away, but St. Laurent has carried on the company with the help of his son Danny.

“My son became my partner when he graduated college,” St. Laurent said, adding that Danny has been working with him since he was a child.

Like many other companies, Jack of All Trades has had to change the way it does things somewhat throughout the coronavirus pandemic.

“When it first started, I was very nervous about it,” St. Laurent said. “But we’ve gotten through it, and I think that has a lot to do with our reputation. We do very nice work. We do quality work. We do work like it’s our own home.”

St. Laurent added that workers will wear a mask when necessary during home improvement jobs for the safety of customers and themselves.

“We work together so they’re comfortable and we are too,”

Although there have been challenges during the pandemic, such as lumber shortages and a scarcity of other supplies, Jack of All Trades has made it work. In the last few years it has moved into the cabinet business, selling Fabuwood cabinets.

“They’re made right here in the United States,” St. Laurent said. “They’re American-made and good quality.”

According to their website, Jack of All Trades goes by their mottos “NO JOB TOO SMALL” and “QUALITY IS #1.”

“They will work in your home as if it were their own and treat you, your family and home with the utmost respect,” their website reads.
