

Heather Lee Archibald-Chambrello

“Heaven must be an eternal hello, because Earth is so full of good-byes.”

(Author unknown)

Heather Lee Archibald-Chambrello, 54, passed away peacefully, in her home, on Jan. 27, 2021.

Heather was born on Nov. 4, 1966 in Bourne, Mass., to parents Theresa (Dembek) Field and the late Bill Archibald.

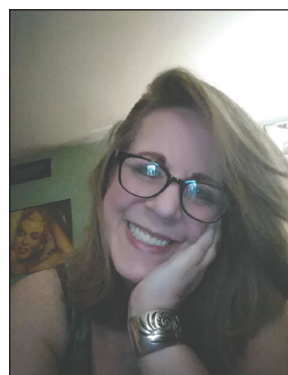

She attended Mary Immaculate Academy, and went on to work in a variety of settings. She gave birth to her only child, a son, Scott Gregory Jr., in 1986.

Those who were blessed to know Heather were gifted with her unique and joyous spirit, thoughtful generosity, and contagious laughter. A wild and beautiful soul with a heart of gold, she was filled with love for all and had a special soft spot for children and animals. Animated and never at a loss for words, she spread love and an abundance of information everywhere she went. She was passionate about music, dance, and all things magical, and she possessed an eternal youth that could not be tamed. When faced with life's difficulties, she always remained faithful, courageous and strong.

Heather is survived by her son, Scott Gregory Jr.; her mother and stepfather, Teri and Andy Field; sister and brother-in-law, Holly and Tom Allen; brother and sister-in-law, Joe and Elise Archibald; niece and nephew, Ruby and Zen Allen, to whom she was a beloved and cherished “Auntie Seesta”; stepsons Michael and Rocco Chambrello Jr.; step-granddaughters Elizabeth and Penelope

Rose Chambrello; and canine fur baby Brody.

In Heather's passing, she joins her late husband and lifetime soulmate, Rocco Chambrello. May they rest in peace in each other's arms forever.

Phyllis Roberge

Phyllis Roberge died peacefully at Bristol Hospital on Sunday, March 7 and returned to Norman, her spouse and soulmate, after missing him every day since he died in 2003.

Boxing great Marvelous Marvin Hagler dies

(AP) Marvelous Marvin Hagler stopped Thomas Hearns in a fight that lasted less than eight minutes yet was so epic that it still lives in boxing lore. Two years later he was so disgusted after losing a decision to Sugar Ray Leonard — stolen, he claimed, by the judges — that he never fought again.

One of the great middleweights in boxing history, Hagler died Saturday at the age of 66. His wife, Kay, announced his death on the Facebook page for Hagler's fans.

“I am sorry to make a very sad announcement,” she wrote. “Today unfortunately my beloved husband Marvelous Marvin passed away unexpectedly at his home here in New Hampshire. Our family requests that you respect our privacy during this difficult time.”

Hagler fought on boxing's biggest stages against its biggest names, as he, Leonard, Hearns and Roberto Duran dominated the middleweight classes during a golden time for boxing in the 1980s. Quiet with a brooding public persona, Hagler fought 67 times over 14 years as a pro out of Brockton, Massachusetts, finishing 62-3-2 with 52 knockouts.

“If they cut my bald head open, they will find one big boxing glove,” Hagler once said. “That's all I am. I live it.”

Hagler was unmistakable in the ring, fighting out of a southpaw stance with his bald head glistening in the lights. He was relentless and he was vicious, stopping opponent after opponent during an eight year run that began with a disputed draw against Vito Antuofermo in 1979 that he later avenged.

He fought with a proverbial chip on his shoulder, convinced that boxing fans and promoters alike didn't give him his proper due. He was so upset that he wasn't introduced before a 1982 fight by his nickname of Marvelous that he went to court to legally change his name.

Eugene Hughes, university president, dies at 86

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — President Eugene Hughes, who served as president of state universities in Arizona and Kansas, died Wednesday in Flagstaff. He was 86.

Northern Arizona

University announced the death on its website. Cause of death was not stated.

Hughes served as NAU president for 14 years, serving from 1979 to 1993 while grappling with state budget cuts and expanding student enrollment and academic programs.

After meeting then-NAU President J. Lawrence Walkup at a conference, Hughes was hired as dean of arts and sciences in 1970 and promoted academic vice president in 1977.

Hughes left NAU to become president of Wichita State University, serving about 5 1/2 years before retiring in 1998.

Services will be announced at a later date, NAU said.
